

NO MONEY

For Sectarian Schools is the Policy of the Senate.

The Appropriations Are Increased From $1,135,000 to $1,335,000

For the Support of Day and Industrial Schools for Indian Children—Future Payment for Education of Paposes in Sectarian Schools Prohibited.

WASHINGTON, April 23.—In the senate Wednesday the discussion of the question of sectarian schools for Indian children was continued for a couple of hours. It ended in the adoption of the amendment offered by Mr. Cockrell, of Missouri. The bill as it came from the house appropriated $1,135,000, increased by the senate to $1,335,000, for support of day and industrial schools for Indian children. This appropriation was accompanied, however, by a provision absolutely prohibiting future payment for education of Indian children in sectarian schools. Mr. Cockrell's amendment was a substitute for the provision, declaring that it is "the settled policy of the government to make no appropriations whatever for the education of Indian children in any sectarian school just as soon as it is possible for provision to be made for their education otherwise." It also provided that the secretary of the interior may make contracts with present contract schools during the fiscal year 1897 to half the amount used for the fiscal year 1896. This amendment was agreed to—yeas, 38; nays, 24. The remainder of the day was used in discussion of various matters in connection with Choctaws, Cherokees, Creeks and "Squaw men." Without finishing the bill, the senate adjourned until Thursday.

THE THIRD DAY

Of the Trial of Jackson for the Ft. Thomas Murder.

Doctors Agree Pearl Was Alive When Her Head Was Severed.

Also That the Murder Was Committed on the Spot Where the Body Was Discovered—Damaging Testimony Filled Up Against the Accused.

NEWPORT, April 23.—Wednesday afternoon dentist Gillespie, of Greenacres, Ind., was called. The examination for the prosecution was conducted by Attorney Hays, of Greenacres, who has been employed by the family to assist in prosecuting the murderers of Pearl Bryan.

Dr. Gillespie identified several letters written to him by Scott Jackson. He testified to seeing Jackson with Pearl Bryan frequently in Greenacres. One day Jackson came to the witness and said he was in great deal of trouble over Pearl and wanted to know what to do. Witness told him he had better marry her; he said he could never do that. That was about five days before Jackson returned to Cincinnati during the holidays.

JUDGE HELM.

Mayor Caldwell, of Cincinnati, was then called and narrated the statements Jackson had made to him after his arrest, all of which has been published.

During the time the mayor was detailing the story of Scott Jackson's arrest and the private interview which he and Chief Deitch had with the prisoner immediately after his arrest, there was not a sound heard in the courtroom save the mayor's voice, the ticking of the big clock on the west wall of the courtroom and the occasional grating of a knife blade and a reporter's dulled pencil. The mayor spoke slowly and deliberately.

Dr. J. O. Jenkins was the next and last witness called for the day. He stated that he was a practicing physician and surgeon in Newport, Ky., where he had lived for 15 years, and that he assisted the coroner and other physicians in the post-mortem examination on the body of the woman found near Fort Thomas, being present as a spectator and investigator.

He recited at length the findings of the examination, stating the condition of the various parts of the body, in all of which he corroborated the facts brought out by the testimony of Dr. Tingley and Dr. Carothers.

NEWPORT, Ky., April 23.—Court opened at 9:30 Thursday morning. After the prisoner was brought into the courtroom, Health Officer J. O. Jenkins was cross examined by Attorney Crawford.

The cuts on the hand would not indicate that the head was cut off during life—not strictly," the witness said. The cuts on Pearl Bryan's hands were found slightly open, and the prosecution, through Dr. Carothers and Coroner Tingley, assert that this condition proved the girl was alive when her head was severed. The object of Crawford's cross-examination was to disprove this.

"Does the skin contract after death, causing wounds to open?" he asked. "Yes," was the answer. "What is the effect of rigor mortis?" "The muscles are rendered tense by rigor mortis," said Dr. Jenkins.

He said that rigor mortis had passed off in the case of Pearl Bryan's body before the autopsy, and if rigor mortis had passed away there could be a retraction of the skin. There are some circumstances, as poison action, excessive bodily heat or cold, watery condition of blood vessels, lack of oxygen, and there might be other conditions, which might cause a suspension of coagulation of blood in the body after death. The drugs are chlorine and carbonic acid. It is an undecided question if chloroform would cause a suspension of coagulation. Chloroform kills by paralyzing the heart. It suspends the contraction of the smaller arteries and tissues. Dr. Jenkins said there was possibly two pounds of blood in the body when the autopsies were made. This showed that about eight pounds or pints had flowed out.

COL. NELSON.

On redirect examination Dr. Jenkins said that in the autopsies no abnormal condition of any part of the body was found. No sign of any disease that might retard the coagulation of the blood was found. An incision in a dead body may cause the wound to gape, but not the skin, the latter being the case in the wounds on Pearl Bryan's neck and hand.

The doctor said that in the autopsy no sign of any drug was found in the body that would have a tendency to retard coagulation, but chloroform evaporates very quickly.

The prosecution said that Dr. F. W. Flashback would be the last physician they would put on the stand. He assisted in the autopsy on Pearl Bryan's body. The head had evidently been cut off by a knife, passing from left to right. It was a clean cut, but for evidence of hacking on the vertebrae. He said the blood clot in the pulmonary artery was four inches from the heart. The other doctor said one inch. Otherwise he corroborated the testimony of the previous experts.

He said if the head was cut off before the heart ceased to contract the blood would be drained from the body completely. If cut off five minutes after death the blood would leave only by gravitation.

Col. Nelson asked the witness what the blood spattered on the privet bushes would indicate. Crawford objected to the broad manner in which the question was asked. Judge Helm put the question. Dr. Flashback said the spattering came from a live body. The cross-examination then began.

Dr. Flashback corroborated Jenkins on several technical points regarding the coagulation of blood.

A bunch of white wild flowers were on Judge Helm's bench when he opened court at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon. The judge consulted a law book several minutes and Commonwealth attorney Lockhart stepped forward and talked with the judge. Neither Attorney Crawford nor his client, Scott Jackson, had entered.

When Col. Crawford came he also had a private conversation with Judge Helm. The court said: "I understand that the prosecution has decided not to present arguments."

"Yes, sir." Speaking to the jurors, the court said: "Judge Caldwell Wednesday said certain things that Alonzo Walling told in the presence of Scott Jackson. You are to determine by the evidence that will be offered whether Jackson by his conduct admitted on that occasion the truth of Walling's charges. That is all."

The points involved in this decision, as shown by Mayor Caldwell's testimony, are Walling's assertions that Jackson told him Pearl Bryan was in trouble, that he wanted to poison her, and that he would cut her body to pieces.

Edgar Schofield was the first witness called by the prosecution at the afternoon session of the court. He testified to being the agent by whom the stomach of Pearl Bryan and its contents were taken to Dr. W. H. Crane, in Cincinnati.

Dr. W. D. Litter, of near Leesborough, Ky., followed Dr. Schofield. He knew Scott Jackson for six months prior to his arrest, and not very well. The acquaintance was begun at his room in Cincinnati, and he saw little of him. He was present at a conversation between Jackson and Walling about the effects of cocaine in the two prisoners' room. This was about ten days before the finding of the body. The witness was passing the room and Jackson called him in. Jackson said that he had claimed that one grain of cocaine in a gramme of water would have the same effect as the same amount in one-half gramme, and Walling claimed it would not, and they wanted the witness' opinion. The witness said that it was his opinion it would.

Mrs. Bryan, Pearl's mother, was the next examined. She testified to the fact that Scott Jackson had been a frequent caller at her home in Greenacres and often took Pearl out riding in a buggy. She identified the clothing on exhibition as that of her daughter.

A SHORT RIOT.

Lumber Shovers at Cleveland, O., Quelled by the Police.

CLEVELAND, O., April 23.—There was a riot of short duration on the lumber docks Wednesday afternoon between members of the Lumber Shovers' union and a gang of non-union men under the leadership of John Powitzki, a saloon keeper. The non-union men went to the docks to unload a boat, and one of them displayed a gun and defied the union men who were on the dock. Gus Swess, a non-union man, charged on the crowd and was severely cut about the head and neck with a knife. His assailant escaped. Two wagon loads of policemen appeared and further trouble was averted for the time being. John Powitzki was arrested. Manager Goebel, of the union men, made a speech and requested them to go home. More boats will soon arrive and further trouble is expected.

All was quiet at the lumber docks Thursday morning. The demands of the union men have been acceded to and five vessels were being unloaded without interference. Some of the men who participated in the riot Wednesday were about the docks, but the presence of a squad of police has prevented any outbreak. It is the opinion there will be no further outbreak.
